Radical Welcome

s we get ready for Christmas, we decorate our homes. We pull out items that we have kept from years past. And with every decoration we pull out, we are flooded with memories: some tender, some troubling. Such is the paradox of the Christmas season.

The story of Jesus begins with conflict. Mary and Joseph, we know, were from a backwoods town that the elite distrusted. The pregnancy was unplanned, at least by the Holy Couple. They were shunned by their family and were welcomed by strangers and even animals. That this is how the Bible says God was smuggled into this world is a hopeful, if not revolutionary notion.

The idea of welcome is central to the Christmas story. We tend to welcome primarily those who have been vetted, whom we can trust, who look like us, worship like us, vote like us. But is this what the Gospel is about? I seem to remember the Jesus who grew up would be a welcoming one. He even said we should love our enemies. Radical stuff that we tend to forget, or at least diminish under the banner of Christianity.

How about, this Christmas, giving the gift of radical welcome, extravagant acceptance? Who knows, God might just get smuggled in again.

Blessings and Peace,

Advent symbols

During much of the church year the cross is a central piece of Christianity's hymnody, art and devotion. But in Advent, we get to try on some different symbols. Imagine if something other than the cross would be a part of our devotional lives?

During Advent, we're inviting you to look at five symbols for Christianity. We'll spend a Sunday looking at each. (On Nov. 27, we looked at Water.)

Advent I: Water

Advent II: Angels Wings Advent III: Scales of Justice Advent IV: Shepherd's Crook Christmas Eve: Manger

The service on Dec. 4 will include elements designed especially for those who find the holiday season difficult. Those who have recently lost a loved one or have family trauma often have trouble with the pressure to perform or to act happy during a season that is difficult. Please join us.

Getting to Know – Mark Henning

Mark is our Bass soloist.

+ How did you find UBC?

I found UBC through the prior Bass Soloist, Brian Haas, who was leaving the position due to a change in his work schedule. He recommended me to Laura Potratz (previous UBC music director) who hired me.

+ What do you like best about UBC?

My favorite thing about UBC is its focus on social justice. Loving one's neighbor or feeding Christ's lambs; it all boils down to social justice.

+ Tell us about your pets!

I have three cats: Pugsley (photo above) is a roly-poly black cat, though he is really about a 92% cocoa bar brown when he is in solar collector mode. He came to me when my hubby Christopher (photo below) moved in. along with elderly an Gomez, who has since passed. already had three cats: Jake, a big harlequin brown tabby, who has been rehomed since he terrorized the other cats. He now lives at a friend's house with two young boys that love him and he rules the roost.

Second is my grey tabby Newt named after a little girl from a movie who survives by hiding in the infrastructure. When I picked Newt up off the street, This feature highlights a member of our UBC family, answering select questions from a list provided.

she was just a kitten, soaking wet in a rain shower. I got her into my car and she promptly climbed up behind the dashboard and hid for a day until I found her in the glove box.

Finally, we have a lovely orange tabby named Ginger (photo, right) who I inherited from a housemate. She is a sweet old lady who loves long brushing sessions. Newt and Pugsley became the best of friends and now play silent games of wrestling and chase. I also have a 120-gallon saltwater aquarium.

+ What hobbies do you have?

I am an avid gardener growing both flowers and vegetables. I am a master rosarian with the American Rose Society. I have been waging a war against the deer that live in my neighborhood. They love to browse my roses and pepper plants (and anything else they think might be tasty). High fencing seems to be the only remedy.

+ Where do you like to travel?

I love to travel. I particularly love the UK and Ireland. There is so much history. Chester is my favorite destination. It is a city started by the Romans around 500. It was the western-most point of the Roman Empire. It still has massive walls, and preserved ruins from the time, alongside a modern city with a Victorian era main street. Kew Gardens is another favorite destination. If I could choose a city to live in, it would be London. Their public transportation is amazing; it is cosmopolitan, and the food is wonderful. Photos submitted by Mark.

Donate Warm Clothing and Other Items to YouthLink

As the weather gets colder, we can help by collecting warm clothing for our homeless youth. The organization offers basic needs like a hot meal, shower and clothing and provides support in finding stable housing and employment opportunities.

They have an annual holiday party and 'Santa Shop' where families can come pick out gifts for themselves, children or family members. They are looking for items to offer these folks including:

- Winter clothing (coats, hats, gloves, scarves)
- Full-size hygiene products, self-care and beauty products (lotion, nail kits, body wash)
- $10-25 gift card (Visa, Amazon, Target)
- Throw blankets, nice towel sets,

If you are able to donate, please bring your items to church by Sunday, Dec. 4. Thank you for your help!

Bringing a book to publication—and discovering Mary Shepherdson's tracks along the way

By Gayla Marty

I am happy to report that a book I co-edited launched successfully in Minnesota in November. UBC friends have been hearing for a good while about the project that consumed a lot of my time right through the pandemic. Here is the story behind the book.

The title is Mestenhauser and the Possibilities of International Education, published by Routledge of London and New York (2023). It is built around the last writings of U of M Professor Josef Mestenhauser (1915-2015), a pioneer in developing the theoretical foundations of international education.

Joe had a powerful personal story of escaping from his homeland of Czechoslovakia in 1948, staying in refugee camps, and arriving in the United States as an international student in 1949. He came to Minnesota as a grad student in 1950 and worked his way up in academia, eventually helping to found the Comparative and International Development Education program in the College of Education and Human Development.

He was a huge champion of international students and scholars in Minnesota, and a huge champion of Minnesota in the world. He truly put Minnesota on the global map in higher education. For many years, he directed the International Student Adviser's Office at 717 East River Road, and he helped to found the Minnesota International Center at 711 East River Road—which (not incidentally) was located in the house formerly occupied by Mary Shepherdson, a lifelong member and donor to UBC, as well.

Joe was unable to return home to Czechoslovakia because he'd been tried and sentenced in absentia as an "enemy of the people." When the Soviet Union collapsed in 1989, he was finally called back to receive the law degree he earned but never received. He and many others in his generation were awarded their degrees by President Vaclav Havel. By then Joe had received several Fulbright awards, too, and in 1991 received another to teach in the Czech Republic for a year.

After retiring from the U he served as the Honorary Consul for the Czech Republic in the Midwest, and he never stopped thinking, teaching, and writing.

Two former PhD advisees were helping Joe write his "last book" when he died in 2015. Anne D'Angelo, originally from New Jersey by way of the foreign service, and Mary Katherine O'Brien, originally from Maine by way of intercultural teaching positions, were by then international leaders in the Carlson School of Management and the College of Veterinary Medicine, respectively.

In 2018 I was recruited by another colleague to work with them on bringing Joe's book to publication. I worked in the field of international education for 20 years and for Joe during the first half of that, from 1981 to 1991. In fact, Joe brought me back to work after Claire was born by driving to my house to drop off an IBM Selectric typewriter from the U and box of files so I could edit a journal for a professional organization he was leading in 1983.

Anne, MK, and I recruited an additional 20 contributing authors from 10 countries to write chapters about Joe's impact on their scholarly work and careers. In the end, not only Minnesota and several other states are represented in the book but also the Czech Republic, the Netherlands, Germany, Ukraine, Australia, Singapore, Japan, South Africa, and Zimbabwe. Their chapters wrap around Joe's last manuscript at the heart of the book. Together they make the case for rethinking and recommitting to international education through interdisciplinary collaboration. The book is not only about the past and present but also the future in chapters that explore the neuroscience of "cognitive shifts" and the challenges of digital classrooms and campuses. My own contribution was a brief recap of Joe's life with a focus on his career.

On Nov. 18, a launch for the book was held at Coffman Union in a room where Joe used to host international visitors for breakfast or lunch. (I was a scheduler of those lunches for quite a few years.) The launch was a breakfast and program, and we had a hard time making everyone leave at 11:30! Former Minnesota Secretary of State Mark Ritchie, former U president Bob Bruininks, and the current Honorary Consul for the Czech Republic were among those attending. Two nights earlier, the Czech community held a gathering to honor Czech contributor Eva Janebova and the book's publication at Sokol Hall in St. Paul. Joe's daughters also hosted a dinner for contributors at their home. It was a joyful and exhausting week!

Not long before Joe died, I learned that he had been not only my amazing director but the architect of the reciprocal exchange program that brought me into the field of international education. Berlin was the first exchange in the group of exchanges, founded in 1952 (still operating today!), and Tunisia was another (I was the third Minnesota student to participate during its span from 1977 to 1998).

And I had no idea when I worked for Joe in the 1980s in an office on the third floor of the beautiful old Shepherdson house on 711 East River Road that it had once been the home of the chief benefactor of UBC, the church I attended, too! That house later served as the first Center for Victims of Torture in the United States. The Minnesota International Center was renamed Global Minnesota, headquartered just seven blocks from UBC at 1901 University Avenue S.E.

I am proud to have played a part in bringing Joe's book to publication—writing the book proposal and getting a publisher, then supporting (pushing!) my busy coeditors and copyediting through the production phase. It is a scholarly book, not exactly light reading, but anyone interested can find it online through the Routledge website or Amazon. The U of M Bookstore in Coffman Union is also restocking it since it sold out.

Now I am back to working on my Tunisia book.

FINANCIAL SECRETARY'S REPORT

UBC's budgeted operating income for 2022-23 is $365,885. This includes the final adjusted amount of $22,875 carryforward from 2021-22 fiscal year and the Foundation distribution of $64,720.

Most of our income (52%) comes from the pledges made by members. Pledges received to date are running a bit behind expected.

Expected annual rental income for 2022-23 of $74,000 is 20% of our budget. This is a large increase over last year's $60,000. This item has a surplus as our largest renter received a grant and has pre-paid some rent.

Other gifts and miscellaneous income provide 4% of our budget. These are mostly gifts made by pledgers beyond their pledge or from people who did not pledge.

The Foundation distribution is 18%, which includes 9% ($32,053) for the property manager position. The Foundation funds are transferred to the UBC checking account as needed by the treasurer.
